Construction continues

By Nola Stockfleth

Work on the main construction sites, which includes the new library, the Performing Arts Center, the patio and the sidewalks, has continued despite the wet weather.

The sidewalks near the Union should be completed within two weeks, said Dr. Robert Bush, director of environmental affairs at Northwest. "The wet weather may set back the completion date, though," he said.

The sidewalks are being fixed now because the money wasn't available this summer, Bush said.

"We can't bid without the money in our hands, even though it had been allocated to us," Bush said.

We couldn't live with the sidewalks the way they were because of the danger involved, Bush said.

The new library should be completed within the next two months as furnishings are being installed now, Bush said. During spring break, the books and reference materials will be moved to the new facility. It will be dedicated in April, Bush said.

Completion of the Performing Arts Center will be 1984, Bush said. This date is when the Center will be usable as a production center.

"It's a long, slow task on that building," Bush said. "When it's done, it should be the most outstanding building of its kind in the four state area. It will be truly unique. The building will not be opened until it is totally completed," he said.

The patio, donated by a couple of senior classes, located on the west side of the Union, will be completed this fall if the good weather holds, Bush said. The patio will be functional this spring as trees and benches will be placed in the area.

Construction on one third of the Union roof will begin soon. The material that will be used for the new roof is a new substance that is resilient to the sun and weather, Bush said.

To finalize the landscaping on campus, more trees are to be planted in the future, Bush said. More varieties of trees will be used so that if diseases should kill some trees others will be there to replace them.

One thousand trees will be planted by the country club road and transplanted to the campus later. The trees will be used to screen parking lots and beautify the campus, Bush said.

The Northwest alumni will be asked to donate money for beautification of the campus, Bush said. With the funds, students not having workstudy will be able to work by planting trees. The year for campus beautification is 1983-84.

"We want to regain the beauty of the campus that has been lost over the past 20 years," Bush said.

Hudson Hall holds fundraiser

By Mary Sanchez

Hudson Hall held a fundraising dance in the Union Ballroom, Nov. 30 for Spofford Home in Kansas City.

The dance included a movie, refreshments and door prizes. The $132 raised will go towards the upkeep of the home for severely disturbed boys and girls between the ages of five and 11.

Located in the Hickman Mills school district, the home is a wooden shingled, red-brick building currently housing 30 children. The facilities include a swimming pool given by an anonymous donor and a wooden, rustic playground.

The entrance to the shelter is partly littered by children's Big Wheels and other small bikes. This happy atmosphere, however, is in opposition to the backgrounds of the children who stay at Spofford.

Over 80 percent of the kids come from abused homes, said Peggy Sinden, a worker at the center and a 1958 Northwest graduate.

Many of the children have been sexually abused by their parents or neglected. Because of their nightmarish backgrounds, the children are often withdrawn, neurotic, show hyperactivity or occasionally even have fire setting habits or suicidal tendencies.

"You think you've heard it all and then a new child will come in. I'll read his case history and be shocked again," Sinden said.

Because the pressure of working with these children is so great, the turnover rate for the home's five classroom teachers is high.

"If we can get a teacher to stay two years, we're doing good," Sinden said. "A teacher may spend eight hours a day with a child. Often the kids take their frustrations out on the teachers."

As well as aides for the teachers, the home also staffs two psychiatric consultants from the Kansas University Medical Center.

One worker, the center's art teacher, is credited with a lot of the progress some of the students have made. Decorating the entrance lounge are three-foot paper mache sculptures done by the children. Puff the Magic Dragon is one of these artworks. It was done by three boys who, at the beginning of the project, couldn't stop fighting with each other. By the time the dragon was completed, the boys had learned to control their aggressions and were inseparable friends.

Another one of the sculptures is an exact replica of the famed E.T. The work, complete with posed glowing fingertip and wrinkled skin surrounding pleading eyes, was done by a ten-year-old.

Indeed, many of the children are extremely gifted in art and other areas. They are all of average or above average intelligence. However, because of their backgrounds, many of the children have fallen behind their normal school levels.

Rooms for the children are a lot like dorm rooms in Roberta Hall, with a bathroom placed between two rooms. Some of the residents are disturbed to the point where they require private rooms.

Some playrooms for the children are equipped with a two-way mirror so their behavior patterns may be observed.

One room is referred to as the country store. Here children may purchase games, toys and other items with points they have accumulated. Points may be earned as a reward for good table manners, being polite or controlling anger.

Most of the children stay at the center about a year. After that they go to foster homes or return to their own families.

"It's hard seeing them leave. It's easy to get attached," Sinden said.

However, many times a child can not return to his own home.

"Because a lot of them are abused, to go home would be a frightening thing," Sinden said.

Child abuse often becomes a vicious cycle of behavior. People who were abused as children many times abuse their own children.

Because of this continuous cycle, many children are on a waiting list for Spofford Home.

Meal plans proposed for all dorms

By Debbie Eatock

A recommendation calling for modification in the 1983-84 housing/food policies has been submitted to Dr. John Mees, Northwest's vice president of student affairs, said Northwest's dean of students Dr. Phil Hayes at the Nov. 30 Student Senate meeting.

Hayes said all students with residence hall contracts would have to have one of the meal plans.

"I feel a concern whether it is fair to require students living in the high rise halls to have a meal contract, while others do not," Hayes said.

He also recommended that lunch and dinner on Saturday and lunch on Sunday be served at Taylor Commons as well as the Union.

"I've also recommended that all 10 meal plans may eat any of the 20 meals," Hayes said. "We will continue honoring meal plans in the snack bar and deli."

He added that either all students would have to have meal contracts or prices would be raised again.

Next year, the 20 meal plan will cost $500 per semester, up $25 this year. The 15 meal plan would be $465 a semester, up $15 and the 10 meal plan would be $435, up $10.

In other business, the Senate allocated the Association for Computing Machinery $38 to pay transportation expenses of a guest speaker from Bell Labs in Kansas City.

The Senate also allocated $262 to the Alpha Kappa Lambda fraternity to pay for the ski trip given as first place in the Muscular Dystrophy Dance Marathon.

The English Honor Society received $35 for a workshop and panel discussion.

The Senate also approved the constitutions of the German Club and the Arab Student Association.

Faculty Senate subcommittee studies suggested change

By Debbie Eatock

Discussions of the Blueprint Task Force have led the Faculty Senate to study suggestions made by University President Dr. B.D. Owens, said Faculty Senate president Dr. John Hopper.

Hopper said one suggestion was a restructuring of programs to organize the general studies programs.

He said there is a need for an orientation course to help students understand how to function in a university.

This would be reinforced with an effort to tie the performing arts to other classes.

Hopper said the program would end with a capstone or ideas seminar.

Under this plan, by the end of their sophomore or junior year, students should be able to think from a position of more maturity, Hopper said.

A Faculty Senate subcommittee is working with student senate and support staff to form an administration evaluation.

Roxanna Swaney, Student Senate vice president and member of the subcommittee, said they met for the first time on Nov. 30.

She said the groups must decide whom to evaluate, how they should be evaluated and who will evaluate the various administrators.

Swaney said the subcommittee wants only qualified people to evaluate others. The person would preferably be someone who worked with the administrators and know them.

"We have to figure out how they are doing their jobs," Swaney added.

Pre-registration rises

By Ken Gammell

Pre-registration for second semester classes was held Nov. 16-18 in the Ballroom of the student union.

Assistant registrar Cherine Heckman said, "The total number of students who pre-registered was 3510. This was up approximately 130 from the pre-registration figure for the spring of 1982. The number of full time students that pre-registered was 3360. There were 180 part time students that registered. The number of male students that pre-registered was 1,167 and the number of females was 1,843. There were 30 graduate students that registered. Many graduate students didn't pre-register because there is usually enough room in their classes. The graduate classes rarely close," she said.

Linda Girard, registrar, said, "Everyone that pre-registered will receive a letter telling them what time they are to come verify. When you go to verify, part of that is to check your schedule to make sure that you have the right classes. You should also check the form one to see if the department, course and section numbers are right. Also, if students are suspended due to grades, their pre-registration will be cancelled."

"It's always more difficult for freshmen, because they don't always get good schedules and they don't know the procedures," Girard said. "They often have to take what's left. They do, however, have more possible courses to take."

Commuters reimbursed for parking fee payments

By Mark L. Gardner

All commuters who paid a $25 parking fee should be getting a $15 refund this month, said Diane Peters, office manager at Northwest's Campus Safety.

"We sent out a letter to everybody who paid $25 for a commuter sticker, and in that letter they were given a date and time to come in and pick up their refund," she said.

"If they don't come in on their specified day, they must make arrangements for another time because I only pick up enough money for each day," Peters said.

"I want to stress that the refund is only for commuter stickers," Peters said. "We've had a lot of people with resident stickers trying to get a refund."

According to schedule, all refunds should be given out by Nov. 30, Peters said.

Madrigal Feaste to be on Dec. 10 and 11

Madrigal Feaste, a holiday tradition at Northwest, will be presented Dec. 10 and 11 in the Union Ballroom at 7 p.m.

For the third consecutive year, the Northwest Madrigal Feaste also will be presented in Kansas City on Dec. 3 at the Hillside Christian Church.

Sponsored by the Music Department and the Student Union Board, the Madrigal Feaste is a recreation of a 16th century English celebration.

Northwest Madraliers, outfitted in replicas of 16th century dress, will perform throughout the evening. The Madraliers have performed the past three years at the Kansas City Renaissance Festival.

Additional entertainment will be provided by jousts, jesters, dancers and a brass quintet.

Serving as King and Queen of the Court for the Feaste will be Mark Wille and Leslie Ide.

The Lord High Steward will be portrayed by Chuck Duer, the court jester by Nancy Suddarth and jousting will be presented by Richard Thompson and Tim Curry.

Tickets are $9.25 per person and $6 for students with a University meal plan. Seating is by reservation only and reservations are being handled on a first come, first served basis.

For additional information concerning the Kansas City Feaste, call 453-2623, and for the Maryville Feaste, call 562-1326.

Frucht publishes book

Dr. Richard Frucht is the author of a book just published by the Columbia University Press in its East European Monograph Series.

The book, "Dunarea Noastra: Romania, the Great Powers, and the Danube Question, 1914-1921," is the result of Frucht's two year stay in Romania.

Dunarea Noastra, translated into English, means, "Our Danube." The book deals with the international status of the Danube River after World War I.

The work is the only English language study of the Danube during this period, when the former administration of the river by the great powers was overturned.

Frucht said his research reverses previous conclusions, primarily Romanian conclusions, that Romania lost a great deal in a special conference established after WWI to set up administrative machinery to govern Europe's most important water highway, the Danube.

Jazz to be performed

The Jazz Ensemble concert will be Dec. 7 at 8 p.m. in the Charles Johnson Theater.

The concert will feature a wide spectrum of jazz styles including the Count Basie "Big Band" and Woody Herman "Jazz Rock."

"We're featuring a selection for every jazz listener. Our numbers range from up-tempo jazz to laid-back blues. This is a concert that will keep jazz listeners entertained," said Al Sergel, director of the jazz ensemble.

Three student soloists, Pat Chrisler, alto saxophone; Robin Clarke, piano; and Mike Steiner, trumpet and flugel horn, will be featured during the concert.

There is no admission charge for the concert and it is open to the public.

Vocalists to sing Christmas selections

Tower Choir, University Chorale and University Singers will present their annual Christmas concert Dec. 5 at 3 p.m. in the Charles Johnson Theater.

The 140-voice University Chorale will begin the concert with an exciting arrangement of "The First Noel" and conclude their portion of the concert with "Twas the Night Before Christmas."

Soloists for the Chorale will be Lori Burgin, Cheri Shortell and Greg Gilpin.

The University Singers, a barbershop quartet, will sing a medley of Christmas songs. Members of the quartet are Greg Gilpin, Karl Jacoby, Jeff Lean and Leland Lantz.

Concluding the concert will be a repertoire of spirituals, sacred compositions, popular tunes and songs for the Christmas season.

Soloists for the Tower Choir will be John Standerford, Jackie Byrum, Elise Pointer and Marcia Matt.

Students given awards

Denise Pratt, accounting major, is the recipient of this year's McGladrey, Hendrickson & Co. Accountancy Award.

The $150 cash award is presented on the basis of outstanding scholastic achievement and potential and is selected by members of the accounting faculty.

The award was presented by John McCune, a partner of the Des Moines, Iowa, based firm of McGladrey, Hendrickson & Co.

Another accounting major, John Elliott, is the recipient of this year's Kensing-Imes Accounting Award.

The $100 cash award is presented on the basis of outstanding scholastic achievement and potential and is selected by members of the accounting faculty. The award was presented by Dr. Edward Browning, chairman of the accounting department.

Also recently receiving a scholarship was horticulture major Laura Rutherford.

The $500 Federated Garden Club's Scholarship was presented to Rutherford by Mrs. Robert Perkins, past president of the Maryville chapter of the club.

Clevenger, Newport take first in tourney

Jim Clevenger and Ricky Newport captured first place in the Novice Debate Tournament at Nebraska Wesleyan University Nov. 19 and 20.

The team of Clevenger and Newport posted a 4-1 record in the tournament, winning over teams from Nebraska-Lincoln, Nebraska Wesleyan and two teams from Nebraska-Omaha.

A total of 20 teams representing five schools participated in the tournament.

The team of Clevenger and Newport along with Erich Steiner and Scott Ahrens will travel this weekend to debate at the Iowa State University Invitational.

Placement

puts many in jobs

A report issued for the 1981-82 placement year states, "In spite of a very tight economy, 94 percent of the 1981-82 graduates of NWMSU who reported to us (the office of career planning and placement) found employment or went on to further study in graduate school."

The report was compiled by Marvin Silliman, director of career planning and placement at Northwest.

During the past placement year, which ended on August 31, 1982, 43 percent of those students reporting back accepted positions in business and industry, 24 percent went into some aspect of education and 14.5 percent indicated they would pursue graduate study.

One of the year's largest events sponsored by the career planning and placement office was Teacher Placement Day last April. Hiring officials from 86 school districts in Missouri, Kansas, Nebraska and Iowa were on hand to talk with some 200 Northwest students seeking positions in education.

Northwest graduated 636 students with baccalaureate degrees and 186 with master's degrees during 1981-82.

During the year, 11,765 vacancies were reported by potential employers to the placement office. As Northwest graduates and alumni using the placement service sought jobs, they called upon the office to provide potential employers with 5,446 sets of credentials.

A breakdown of salaries reported by those accepting new positions shows that baccalaureate degree recipients in business and industry received annual starting salaries of $14,161, including a high of $40,000 and a low of $7,000; alumni candidates taking positions in business and industry accepted salaries averaging $16,631 with $35,000 the high and $10,000 the low.

In education, the average salary pay to a new secondary teacher in Missouri was $11,842. New secondary teachers accepting a position out of Missouri averaged $13,424. Alumni candidates accepting teaching positions in Missouri averaged $13,743.

but if they went out of state, the average was $15,998.

Elementary teachers with new degrees averaged salaries of $10,148 in Missouri and $11,781 if they took positions out of state. Alumni who used the placement service averaged $10,431 in Missouri elementary teaching positions and $11,406 if they took teaching positions in elementary schools outside of Missouri.

Job candidates accepting positions in miscellaneous fields, including governmental positions and non-profit organizations, took average salaries of $13,026 with new degrees, master's degree recipients averaged $18,250 and Northwest alumni candidates in this area received average salaries of $18,376.

Rising college costs concern

The rising cost of getting a good college education has forced many students to stop and evaluate their plans about attending higher education facilities. Many students at Northwest are being confronted with financial difficulties as the 1983 spring semester draws nearer. For most students, the $60 surcharge the University has added to next semester's fees does not pose any serious difficulties. But, for a majority of students, the increased fee costs for the 1983-84 school year may cause some financial stresses.

The majority of students attending Northwest pay for their education in one of three ways: 1)with scholarships and grants, 2)with their own money, or 3)with parental assistance. Many students may tap several or all of these money sources to cover the cost of college. With the prices of an education continually rising, though, these sources can quickly become strained or completely diminished.

Many college students today are faced with a major question-- whether to try and struggle through college combating fee increases right and left, or to simply end their educational training and enter the job market. Many students, unfortunately, are forced to choose the latter in hopes of someday being able to return to finish their education.

It's a sad thought when one stops to realize that students are actually having to forfeit an education because of ridiculously rising tuition and fees at colleges and universities across the country. In today's world, if one does not have a college degree it is almost impossible to compete in the job market.

Hopefully, higher learning institutions will recognize the problems facing students and work to keep costs down so that each individual can have an equal opportunity for a quality education. If not, enrollment at these institutions will drop considerably, and those students who were once able to keep up with the increases in cost will also soon be chipped away.

Letters to the Editor

Dear Editor:

If there is any significance, let it be known.

Please explain the symbol of the dotted line across the Missouri map in your nameplate on the front page.

We would like to know if it represents the edge of the Northwest Territory or the region of the Bearcat goose and game preserve.

Thank you for creating the newspaper. It's fun keeping up with what's Best in the Northwest.

Yours Sincerely:
Barbara Gingrich
Alumni Class of '74

Editor's Note: Actually, neither of the above conclusions is quite correct. The terminology of "Northwest Territories" is unfamiliar to us here. We can attest, however, to the exploration of the Northwest Territories of the United States as having been mapped by Lewis and Clark in 1804-06 and the discovery of the "Northwest Passage" by Roald Amundsen in 1906. Neither seems to have any direct effect on Maryville, Mo.

As to the reference to the goose lake, this is partially true, according to inside sources. The "talk on the street" attributes this is the area of Missouri land to be underwater as a result of the upcoming Mozingo Project. Factual proof of this, we're sorry to say, is unavailable.

Stroller

Stroller takes a trip home

Your Man enjoys traveling. Unfortunately, he often has trouble remembering the joyful details of his vacationing road trips. For this reason, Your Hero decided to keep a running journal of all the interesting experiences he had during Thanksgiving vacation. Since there wasn't anything really interesting to write down, Your Man wrote a bunch of dumb, weird things down.

Your Man sat down in the hovel and began to draw up a list of the things he must take home with him. Summer clothes, dirty laundry and unopened books go on the list. Then he made a list of the things he must bring back from home. Winter clothes, food and money go on this list.

Roomie came into the room and began to pack his bags to leave.

"I'm making a list," Your Man said. "Is there anything you want me to bring from home?"

"Yeah, see if you can get some Christmas decorations," Roomie replied, "and a ping pong set to keep us from studying for finals and some Christmas albums and a bale of hay."

"Why a bale of hay?" inquired Your Man.

"For a nativity scene, stupid," Roomie said. "We can set it up over your desk."

Your Man neglected to add a bale of hay to his list.

Tuesday, 10:00 a.m.--Your Hero packs his bags, gases up the Lemon and takes off for the frozen north.

Your Man has a complex travel itinerary, due mostly because his parents are continually moving farther and farther away. Now, after 11 years of college, Ma and Pa Stroller live about three times as far away as they used too. But whenever Your Man asks the reason for this, Ma Stroller says, "Well, get a clue!"

Halfway home, the Lemon pulls into the driveway of his sister's home. Luckily, Your Hero's sister, the Strutter, lives along the way home, so it is convenient to drop by on the way. The cheerful Strutter met Your Man at the door dressed in bright orange warmups and an 'Olivia Newton-John' headband.

"Stroller, come on in and have some herb tea," exclaimed Strutter with vibrant enthusiasm.

"I can only stay for awhile, but I would like some coffee if you have any," Your Hero said.

"Coffee!" cried Strutter. "Oh honey, caffeine is a mutagen. It's horrible for you. Sit down in the bean bag chair, and I will make you a nice cup of alfalfa and rosehips."

"I don't feel well," said Your Man as he sat in the holistic atmosphere. His sister cranked up her stereo and the soothing sounds of Kool and the Gang began to permeate his brain.

Your Man is always glad to get away from his sister's nauseating world of health and back on the road again. He put some Led Zeppelin in the tape player to bring him back to reality.

After a few more hours of driving, the car bound carouser was feeling sleepy, so he pulled over at a roadside cafe to get some coffee. As he pulled into Bart's Eat Gas Now, the mournful strains of Bob Seger came from the speakers. "On a long lonesome highway east of Omaha."

Your Man settled into a booth while a gum chewing waitress with thick bifocals gave him a menu. Looking over the various dishes like 'Good Ole Boy Stew' and 'City Slicker Hash,' Your Man decided that he was hungry.

He was just about to order when the woman in the booth behind him began to cough and attempt to clear her throat. Failing on her first attempt, the middle aged lady, dressed in bib overalls and work boots, continued to produce gross sounds.

"I'm not very hungry," said Your Man. "I'll just have a cup of coffee."

It was then that Your Man noticed that Bart's was full of large burly fellows, who suddenly got angry with each other and started arguing roughly with chairs and broken table legs.

"Definitely not the quiche eating crowd," Your Man thought.

Paying his check, Your Hero slipped away and was quickly on the road again. Now he was only an hour's drive away from home and he could almost taste Ma Stroller's homemade spud.

Upon pulling into the Stroller estate, Your Man let out a sigh of relief. Taking bag in hand, he marched into the dining room in the middle of supper.

"Who's that guy?" asked one of Your Hero's numerous siblings.

"I don't know," said Pa Stroller. "Which one of the brats are you?"

"The Stroller," said Your Man, a little bit hurt.

"Well, grab a bowl and find a place at the table," ordered Ma Stroller. Your Man was more than happy to comply.

In the next few days, Your Hero rediscovered all the joys of living at home, good food, lazy afternoons and three-year old brothers in soggy diapers waking him up at 7:00 a.m. to watch cartoons.

But inspite of how much fun Your Man had stuffing his gullet until he was sick, he was still glad to get back to school because they couldn't get in midget wrestling at the Stroller estate on the television.

'Cinderella' set as Forum fundraiser

By Helen Leeper

Kids and Christmas always seem to go hand in hand, at least that's the idea behind Cinderella Christmas, being produced by theater students at Northwest to be presented Dec. 10, 7 p.m. in Charles Johnson Theater.

"The idea of a Christmas show actually got started last year," said Ronnal Jackson, director. "The Eaton Corporation of Shenandoah, Iowa, asked us to do a Christmas show last year as a party for the employees' kids."

Jackson said last year's show Androcles and the Lion was a success so Eaton asked them to perform another show.

"I volunteered to direct the show and Dr. Theophil Ross came up with the idea to do Cinderella Christmas for the Maryville area factories as well as using the show as a fundraiser for the Maryville Daily Forum Christmas Fund," he said.

The Daily Forum Christmas Fund is a collection of monetary donations that is distributed to needy families throughout the community and sponsored by the Daily Forum newspaper.

"Doing the show as a benefit for the Christmas fund is also aimed at trying to get the theater department back into the community service," Jackson said.

He added that the Daily Forum fund was chosen because it distributed the donations, and no groups would be alienated.

Jackson said they will begin the program by getting the audience to join in singing Christmas carol.

"This is to get the kids excited," he said. "It's a participation play, so we thought the singing might get the kids to be less timid about coming on stage. This is one of the first times that audience members will be brought on stage and asked to speak as characters."

After the caroling, Cinderella Christmas will be performed and traditional Christmas stories will be told by the cast members.

"All but two of the stories are mimed out by the rest of the cast members to keep the audience attention," Jackson said. "It's more exciting than just having someone get up and tell a story," he said.

Members of the cast, in order of appearance, are Cinderella and narrator of "Santa Mouse," Abbey Pulley; Cecily and co-narrator of "The Barnyard," Jane Breest; Denise, Beth Stunkel; Stepmother, Dawn Speake; Fairy Godmother and narrator of "In the Week of Christmas" and "Christmas in the Woods," Missy Jackson; King and narrator of "A Christmas Spider," Thomas McLaughlin; Duke and narrator of "Twas the Night Before Christmas," Jonathan Rear; and Prince and co-narrator of "The Barnyard," David Shamberger.

Special treats will be handed out to the children after the performance.

The actors will travel to Shenandoah, Iowa, to perform for the Eaton Corporation. The special performances will also be given at 12:30 p.m. Dec. 9 for Head Start and Horace Mann and 1 p.m. Dec. 19 for the Regal Corporation.

Donations for the benefit performance may be given at the door.

Circle K to have special holiday party

Northwest's Circle K Club is sponsoring a Christmas party Mon. Dec. 6 from 7 to 8 p.m. at the Methodist Wesley Center for members of the Special Friends project, said Susan Sauceman, Circle K publicity chairman.

"The members can bring their special friends if they choose to do so," Sauceman said.

The Special Friends program involves volunteer students who donate at least one hour a week to visit with a child from four to 14 years old from a one-parent family.

Sauceman said this fall's program has been successful with 60 student-child matches.

"We have a possibility for 20 new matches," Sauceman said. "The commitment is for as long as the student wishes with a minimum of six months."

Those interested in becoming a Special Friend should call 582-8330.

EVEN STRAIGHT A'S CAN'T HELP IF YOU FLUNK TUITION.

Today, the toughest thing about going to college is finding the money to pay for it. But Army ROTC can help—two ways!

First, you can apply for an Army ROTC scholarship. It covers tuition, books, and supplies, and pays you up to $1,000 each school year it's in effect.

But even if you're not a scholarship recipient, ROTC can still help with financial assistance—up to $1,000 a year for your last two years in the program.

Albums prove good gift idea as Christmas season draws nearer

By Les Murdock

The clock keeps ticking us closer to Christmas and for the next couple of weeks I'm going to do my part by giving you some musical hints you can use as gifts for that special someone on your list.

The Clash has found it easy to pull hits from their Combat Rock album so far in 1982. "Should I Stay or Should I Go?" is punk enough, but yet still soft so that neophyte punkers can take it all without using their teeth. This one has received more than its share of airplay, making it a favorite throughout the country. No one has been caught slam dancing to this one yet.

The newest release from the Combat Rock album is "Rock the Casbah," which tends to confuse some listeners. The lack of talent displayed on "Should I Stay" is replaced here with some solid musical ability. The vocals are good, and the lyrics are easy to hear.

Looking into the future, the Clash can expect a hit from "Overpowered by the Funk," which, at worst, is just a catchy dance tune and, at best, the album's strongest point.

There are three new faces in the rock scene this year and they have been receiving a lot of attention. Brian Setzer, Slim Jim Phantom and Lee Rocker, better known as the Stray Cats, have debuted on the EMI label with Built for Speed.

The Stray Cats are definitely rockabilly, the kind of music most of us can't remember. "Rumble in Brighton" is appealing, as is the title cut "Built for Speed," but the forte of this album to date has been "Stray Cat Strut" and "Rock This Town." "The Strut" is smooth in its sound. It's just right for slow dancing with your best girl at Arnold's. "Rock This Town" is exciting, to the point and addictive. Built for Speed is rock and roll B.J. (before Jimi).

We'll end this week's list with perhaps the best sound to come from Australia in this century. Just when we thought that all the island could give us were the Brothers Gibb and Springfield, Men at Work sends us Business as Usual, on the Columbia label.

There is no peak or valley in this work. Each track is well done and musically brilliant. Colin Hay, who does a great deal of the band's lyrics, has some real winners in songs like "Be Good Johnny," "Underground" and the band's hit "Who Could it Be Now." It's not overpowering, just enjoyable music from start to finish. There is delightful lyrical work on "Down Under," an almost reggae tune. "Buying bread from a man from Brussels/ He was six feet four and full of muscles/ I said, do you speak my language?/ He just smiled and gave me a Vegemite sandwich." Don't miss Business as Usual.

Tower Choir takes annual tour

By Marcia Matt

Visiting eight area high schools in three days, the Northwest Tower Choir traveled on its annual fall tour Nov. 15-17.

The 38-voice select choir performed at Stanberry High School, Albany High School, South Harrison High School in Bethany, Savannah High School, East Buchanan High School in Gower, West Platte High School in Weston, Truman High School in Independence and Richmond High School.

Tower Choir members were selected by audition in the fall. Auditions will also be held at the beginning of the spring semester.

Rehearsals are held three times a week and this year the group has performed at the Methodist Church and the annual Homecoming alumni luncheon.

At each tour stop, the group presented a 20-minute performance including pop selections, spirituals and sacred compositions. The choir opened each show with a medley of spiritual selections including Joshua Fit the Battle of Jericho, Sometimes I Feel Like a Motherless Child, with a solo by sophomore bass John Standerford, and Ain't-A That Good News.

Junior soprano Jackie Byrum was featured as the soloist in Gounod's Holy, Holy, Holy, from the St. Cecilia Mass.

Other selections include Good Ale, Lo, How A Rose E'er Blooming, The Three Kings, and a medley of the pop tunes, Like to Sing About Sunshine, Love is Blue, featuring freshman alto soloist Elise Pointer and Walk Him Up the Stairs, from the musical Purlie, with junior alto Marcia Matt as the soloist.

Also performing with the Tower Choir was the University Singers Barbershop Quartet, a four member select group in itself. Members are Greg Gilpin, tenor; Karl Jacoby, lead; Jeff Lean, baritone; and Leland Lantz, bass. The quartet performed Mason Dixon Line, Easy Street from the musical Annie and a medley of Bill Grogans' Goat, Little Eyes and Honey That I Love So Well.

The Tower Choir will present a joint Christmas concert with the University Chorale on Dec. 5 in the Charles Johnson Theater at 1 p.m.

Cagers trying to find groove

By Pat Lodes

In the first four games of the season, coach Lionel Sinn has been trying to get his young Northwest Missouri State basketball team into a winning groove.

Emporia State was the first team to blotch the Bearcat's record, as they defeated Northwest 63-61 in a nail-biter at Emporia, Kansas, Nov. 19.

The 'Cats trailed the entire first half, but came on strong in the early minutes of the second half and twice had a four-point lead in that half. Emporia State tied the game at 61 with 2:44 remaining in the game.

Northwest stalled for the last shot and missed, but remained in control of the ball when a Hornet hit the ball out of bounds. With three seconds left, Rick Owens was called for a foul on the inbound play, giving Emporia State a one-and-one free throw opportunity. ESU's Steve Henson put both free throws in to give the Hornets a two point win.

"Emporia started well," coach Sinn said. "We couldn't keep control after we got the lead. We had a chance to control, but we didn't."

The next evening, the Bearcats got on the winning track with a victory over St. Johns, in Winfield, Kansas.

St. Johns and Northwest fought a close battle in the first half, but the Bearcats pulled away in the second half and earned their first regular season win, 72-49.

"We were anything but sharp in the first 20 minutes, but we were still able to have an eight point lead at half time," Sinn said. "We didn't play well, but we won by 23."

Saturday, the Bearcats traveled to Sioux City, Iowa, for two games. The first with Morningside. Northwest took a 2-0 lead, but fell victim to a very aggressive Morningside defense and lost their second game of the season, 82-59.

The Bearcats shot a cold 27 percent from the field which was a big factor in the loss.

Monday evening, the 'Cats finished their Sioux City trip with a 88-70 loss to Briar Cliff. Northwest trailed by one point at half time, but had trouble with Briar Cliff's guard Reggie Greenland in the second half.

"We have nothing to be ashamed of," Sinn said of the Briar Cliff game. "We didn't play that far below our potential, if at all."

The Bearcats, now with a 1-3 record, have been led by Victor Coleman. Coleman has led the 'Cats in scoring all four games and is averaging 20 points per game. Coleman also leads the team in assists and steals, with 14 and 11 respectively. Joe Hurst is the top rebounder for the Bearcats. He has 22 rebounds and is averaging almost six per game.

Coleman is currently number 12 on the all-time leading scorers list at Northwest. He has 792 points in his career and needs just 41 points to move into the number 10 spot.

Friday and Saturday, Dec. 3 and 4, the Bearcats will host the Ryland Milner Tournament. Friday night the 'Cats will take on Park College at 8:00. Saturday, with a win over Park, the Bearcats will play for the championship at 8:00 p.m. With a loss in their opening game, the 'Cats will play for third at 3:00 p.m.

"We're still searching for our strongest unit," Sinn said. "We know who the top eight to ten players are, but they haven't been consistent from game to game. We need to keep progressing and get a win."

Coach Gary Collins (top) applies a wrestling technique to a Bearcat wrestler. The grapplers opened their 1982-83 season at Buena Vista.

Duals leave grapplers even

By Ken Gammell

The Northwest Missouri State wrestling squad opened the season with a double dual meet at Buena Vista College in Storm Lake, Iowa, Nov. 18.

The Bearcats came out of the meet with a 1-1 record. The 'Cats fell to Buena Vista, 32-12, but came back and crushed Coe College, 47-9.

Only two Bearcat wrestlers were able to win matches in the dual action. Senior 158-pounder Bob Glasgow decisioned John Buter of Buena Vista, 2-0, and also scored an 11-9 win over Tim Timmerman of Coe. Freshman heavyweight Todd Ensminger started his collegiate wrestling career on a successful note by pinning his first two opponents, Curt Hesse of Buena Vista in 1:20 and John Henry of Coe in 14 seconds.

Junior 134-pounder Andy Marty posted the only other win against Buena Vista, decisioning Paul Van Oosbree, 7-4.

In the route against Coe, Bearcat winners in addition to Ensminger and Glasgow were 118-pounder Scott Cooper, who pinned Jack Rainey in 3:25; 126-pounder Gary Johnson, who pinned Jim Nasso in 3:30; 150-pounder Dale Crozier, who decisioned Tom O'Connor 7-1; 167-pounder Bill Eaton, who decisioned Marty Wownie, 10-3; 177-pounder Rusty Shipley, who decisioned Tim Swore, 11-3; and 190-pounder Jeff Bradley, who pinned Matt Vessey in 38 seconds.

"Buena Vista was very strong," said head coach Gary Collins. "We had two injuries. Brad Bales hurt his knee and Dick Stipe sprained his ankle. I thought they wrestled well. We're a young team and we'll develop."

The Bearcats took on powerful Nebraska Omaha at Omaha Nov. 30. The first home meet is Dec. 14 against Central Missouri and William Jewell.

Water keys intramural

By Eric Bullock

Intramural swimming and wrestling tournaments highlighted the Northwest Missouri State intramural program before Thanksgiving break.

In the swim meet, the individual winners were Gregory Alvarez in both the 100 meter freestyle and the 50 meter butterfly, Mike Wirtz in the 50 meter back stroke, Michael Templemeyer in the 50 meter breast stroke, the Delta Chi team in the 100 meter relay and the TKE team won the 200 meter freestyle.

Delta Chi were the overall winners in the men's division. WKE's came in second and third place went to Phi Sigma Epsilon. Sigma Phi Epsilon captured fourth.

The team of third floor Phillips number one took the men's independent division. Second place went to Snafu and third floor Phillips number two received third place honors.

The individual winners in the women's division were McMahan in both 100 meter freestyle and the 50 meter butterfly, Dennise Brosius in the 50 meter back stroke, Windy Peters in the 50 meter breast stroke and the Manta Rays in the 100 meter relay and the 200 meter freestyle.

In the intramural wrestling tournament, the winners were Rich Erbat at 125 pounds, Mike Howard at 135 pounds, Eric Downing at 145 pounds, Tim Harms at 155 pounds, Thad Dawson at 165 pounds, Phil Zech at 175 pounds, Rick Goodwin at 185 pounds, Glen Robins at 193 pounds, Scott Lane at 205 pounds; and Scott McClelland in the heavy weight division.

The winners of the independent division were Busch House, first place; Buckhorn Boys, second place and tie for third between the Cosmic Cowboys and Ball Cruisers.

In the Fraternity team division, the winners were the Phi Sigs; second place, Delta Chi; third place, Sigma Phi Epsilon and the Sigma Tau Gamma took fourth.

Intramural basketball starts this week.

Women's season begins with tournaments

By Alan Cross

The Northwest Missouri State women's basketball team began their 1982-83 campaign by competing in two tournaments, compiling a 3-2 record in the process.

The Bearkittens traveled to St. Joseph, Nov. 19 to take part in the Missouri Western Classic. They received a rude welcoming, however, when they were defeated by a scrappy Grand View team, 71-67, in their opening game.

The 'Kittens trailed virtually the whole game, twice falling behind as much as 12 points midway through the second half.

Diane Kloewer and Mary Wiebke then began hitting from long-range to bring Northwest within two with 5:33 left in the game.

Grand View scored six unanswered points to pull ahead 69-61 with a little over three minutes remaining and the Bearkittens never got close enough to challenge.

Northwest was also guilty of committing 27 turnovers during the game. Head coach Wayne Winsted said that the turnovers were mostly due to first game jitters and the fine defensive play by Grand View.

"They had quick hands and really hustled on defense," Winsted said. "I think that any team that plays Grand View will have more turnovers than normal."

Kloewer and Wiebke led the team offensively, as well as defensively. Kloewer pumped in 22 points and grabbed 11 rebounds while Wiebke collected 20 points and nine rebounds. Freshman Christy Heldenbrand also had a fine evening, going 5-8 from the field, scoring 10 points in her first college game.

The Bearkittens then mauled Baker University the next night, 81-49. Northwest jumped to an early 16-3 lead and never looked back.

Freshman Holly Benton proved that she could play both ends of the court. She scored 23 points, added five rebounds, two steals and had one block shot. Benton was also 3-4 from the charity stripe.

Monica Booth, who led the team in assists last year, had 11 assists, along with three steals, four rebounds and a blocked shot.

"I am really pleased with how our freshmen are fitting into our program," Winsted said. "They have been a great asset to us already and they are still improving."

The Bearkittens then made a road trip to Omaha, Nebraska, and captured fifth place at the UNO-Pepsi Classic. That tournament was held Nov. 26, 27 and 28.

Once again the beginning was tough for Northwest when they were defeated by Division I Oklahoma City, 84-72.

Oklahoma City took an early 8-2 lead and made it into a 53-34 half time lead. Oklahoma led by as much as 24 points in the second half before Northwest put the defensive clamps down and pulled within 10 late in the game.

Kim Scamman, another freshman, and Monica Booth led the NWMSU scoring with 16 points each.

"Oklahoma City is a tough team," Winsted said. "They were rated among the top twenty Division I schools. I feel our squad showed just what they are made of by putting on a late minute rally."

Northwest proceeded to do away with St. Francis of Illinois, 95-78, in the semifinal consolation bracket game held Saturday night.

The 'Kittens took a 50-29 lead into the locker room at the half. That was too much of a deficit for St. Francis.

"We were hot that game," Winsted said. "We shot 62 per cent from the field and out rebounded St. Francis, 47-29."

Scamman and Booth were tied for the scoring leadership again with 13 points apiece. Scamman, who was perfect from the line during the Oklahoma City game, continued her streak by going 3-3 from the free throw line.

The Bearkittens then struggled early with Ft. Hays State Sunday night before pulling away to a 78-65 victory in the consolation championship game.

Ft. Hays took an 8-4 lead during the first three minutes of the game, but fought their way back to take a 16-15 lead on a Betty Olson layup with 12:21 left in the opening half.

Northwest scored nine straight points late in the half for a 35-25 lead only to have Ft. Hays cut it down to 38-33 at the half.

Six minutes into the second half, Ft. Hays battled back to take the lead, 45-44.

Enter, once again, Betty Olson. Her inside bucket gave the 'Kittens back the lead which they never relinquished.

Wiebke, hitting 10-17 from the field, led NWMSU in scoring with 20 points. Booth, Kloewer and Olson were major contributors in that game.

The Bearkittens will see action this Friday and Saturday, Dec. 3-4, at the Ryland Milner Tournament that will be held at Lamkin Gymnasium.

The 'Kittens will face Dana Friday night at 6:00. Other teams in the tournament are Emporia State and Northeast Missouri State.

"I feel Emporia will be tough to beat," Winsted said. "But I also feel that we cannot overlook any team if we want play in the championship game."

Thank you all for your thoughts-- your cards and flowers and thoughts have carried the day--
Again, Thank you and I'll see you soon.

Dance marathon raises over $6,000

Approximately $6,050 was raised by dancers at the Sixth Annual Muscular Dystrophy Dance held Nov. 19 and 20 at Northwest Missouri State University's Lamkin Gymnasium, said Paul Bellman, co-chairman for the event.

"That topped last year's total by three to four hundred dollars," Bellman said.

Bellman said 37 couples were registered to dance and only four people dropped out before the 26-hour-long marathon was completed.

"We tried to get the high school involved (with the dance)," Bellman said, "but it just didn't work out so we had to drop the idea."

Bellman said prizes will be awarded Dec. 10 to the couple that brings in the most money and to the next two highest money-collecting people.

"This gives the dancers a three week period after the dance to collect their money," Bellman said.

First prize, for the couple that collects the most money, is a ski trip to Colorado with the Outdoor Program in January. A weekend for two at the Kansas City Sheraton Royal will be given to the person who raises the second highest amount of money. Third prize, given to the next highest money raiser, is a pair of Kansas City Kings basketball tickets.

Bellman said the Casino Night, held at Lamkin Gym during the dance and sponsored by IFC, IRC and the Panhellenic Council, raised approximately $67 for MD.

Music for the dance was provided by KDLX for most of the 26 hours, together with performances by local bands Grand Junction and Tempest.

"Tempest was excellent," Bellman said. "They really did a good job for the dancers. We had pretty consistent good music all the way through."

Dean Anderson, an MD dancer for the last four years, said, "I thought the dance was a real success. Everyone was in pretty good spirits."

Anderson said the dance was a lot of fun and very rewarding.

"To keep going, everyone kind of rode on everybody else's energy," Anderson said. "You also knew it was for a good cause."
